2. Involve

My Challengers in MISSION PROJECTS AND ADVANCEMENT by using the Alabama Advancement Workbook for Challengers

- An adult leader takes the responsibility of leading this part. Some of the workbook is done weekly, some is to be done monthly. Challengers can help in the planning and acquirement of resources to do the projects.

3. Have Short Bible Studies each week using the CHALLENGER BIBLE STUDIES: Going the Extra Mile or any other available youth Bible study resource which incorporates creative Bible studies.

TEEN PEOPLE OF THE BIBLE, $14.95 www.wmystore.com

- One or two youth can be assigned this responsibility. Assignments can be for the month. They are to select the Bible study and lead it in the weekly sessions.

4. Teach Missions by assigning three or six Challengers to teach the missions lesson for the month. If you have six or more Challengers, the teaching can be done in pairs each week. (Youth seem to like this method best.) If you have five or less, the assignments will have to be made to individual Challengers. One week the lesson will be about North American Missions, the next week it will be about International Missions and the next about Local or Volunteer Missions. The last week of the month will be a planning time to plan youth led mission projects.

FIRST WEEK: NORTH AMERICAN MISSIONS LESSON

Two guys will teach about missions in North America from the ON MISSION magazine.

- Before each month, assign two Challengers to find something that interests them about missions in the ON MISSION magazine and teach it one week.

SECOND WEEK: INTERNATIONAL MISSIONS LESSON

Two guys will teach about international missions using THE COMMISSION on-line magazine.

- Before the month begins, two guys are to look through the resources selected and choose what “they are interested in” and then prepare to teach it one week.
(You hear youth say, “It is boring!” Well, now is their chance, they can make it interesting!)

Information about Southern Baptist International Missions can be found:

On the www.imb.org web site

THIRD WEEK: LOCAL MISIONS

Assign two guys to teach about local or volunteer Missions

Give two Challengers the On Mission magazine or THE ALABAMA BAPTIST newspaper, or access to the and www.namb.net and www.thealabamabaptist.org web sites. They are to prepare the lesson from something that caught their interest and present it one week of the month.

An adult leader should call or e-mail the “youth” teachers of the week to remind them to prepare the lesson.
